Brown, Jenny. Birth Strike: The Hidden Fight over Women's Work. PM Pr. ISBN 9781629636382.
Activist Brown addresses the complex intersections between women's work and reproductive freedom with a big-picture view of global policies surrounding decreased birth rates around the world.

Bunyasi, Tehama Lopez & Candis Watts Smith. Stay Woke: A People's Guide to Making All Black Lives Matter. New York Univ. ISBN 9781479874927.
This new guide by Bunyasi offers an examination of the Black Lives Matter movement that bridges gaps between academic discourse and popular culture in powerful, provocative ways. The authors consider the origin of the movement along with what it tells us about America's long history of structural racism.

Calhoun, Ada. Why We Can't Sleep: Women's New Midlife Crisis. Grove. ISBN 9780802147851.
For women experiencing the signs of midlife, this book by Calhoun collects stories relating to mental health, especially depression and anxiety, along with issues such as financial insecurity, job instability, parenting, caregiving, divorce, and other concerns that might prevent someone from getting a restful night's sleep.

Cobbina, Jennifer E. Hands Up, Don't Shoot: Why the Protests in Ferguson and Baltimore Matter, and How They Changed America. New York Univ. ISBN 9781479874415.
Why did thousands take to the streets to protest the 2014 police killings of Michael Brown in Ferguson, MO, and Freddy Gray in Baltimore? Cobbina gives voice to the protesters, using nearly 200 in-depth interviews to detail and document attitudes and actions.

Cohen, Lizabeth. Saving America's Cities: Ed Logue and the Struggle To Renew Urban America in the Suburban Age. Farrar. ISBN 9780374254087.
Urban renewal in the United States is often viewed as a well-intentioned failure. Cohen acknowledges this opinion but moves toward a more nuanced interpretation through the lens of one of its foremost proponents and outspoken advocates: Ed Logue.

Crucet, Jennine Capó. My Time Among the Whites: Notes from an Unfinished Education. Picador. ISBN 9781250299437.
In her first book of essays, Crucet reflects on her experiences as a first-generation college student, as well as the limits of the American Dream, Cuban and American politics, marriage and divorce, culture clashes, financial planning, working in academia, and family conflicts in theory-informed, narrative-driven essays.

Cullen, Dave. Parkland: Birth of a Movement. Harper. ISBN 9780062882943.
We all know about the mass shooting at Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School in Parkland, FL, the movement it sparked, and the teens who continue to speak truth to power. But do we really know the young people behind the tweets and interviews? Journalist Cullen tries to answer that question, documenting the impact of the tragedy and pain that swept through the community, as well as the movement that served as a lifeline for all involved. [An LJ 2019 Best Book.]

Doyle, Sady. Dead Blondes and Bad Mothers: Monstrosity, Patriarchy, and the Fear of Female Power. Melville House. ISBN 9781612197920.
From Circe and Cleopatra to the women of the TV series The Craft, female power has terrified men to the extent that it produces fears that lead men to kill women every day, argues Doyle. Here, Doyle explores women's identities as daughters, wives, and mothers through a set of lenses—theoretical, historical, and cultural—moving seamlessly from feminist theory and pop culture analysis to the dangers women face because of the perceived threat of their sexuality.

Ensler, Eve. The Apology. Bloomsbury USA. ISBN 9781635574388.
Author and playwright Ensler writes an apology in the form of a letter from her late father—the words she needed him to say to her. This book will transform our collective understanding of what an apology for sexual violence can and should be, and how maybe it's more important for survivors to write the script.

Estes, Nick. Our History Is the Future: Standing Rock Versus the Dakota Access Pipeline, and the Long Tradition of Indigenous Resistance. Verso. ISBN 9781786636720.
Activist, scholar, and Lower Brule Sioux citizen Estes challenges the power systems that have attacked and disenfranchised Indigenous peoples for centuries with both the story of northern Plains peoples as well as a political philosophy of Indigenous empowerment. The author provides context for contemporary struggles against the Keystone XL and the Dakota Access pipelines.

Faulkenbury, Evan. Poll Power: The Voter Education Project and the Movement for the Ballot in the American South. Univ. of North Carolina. ISBN 9781469652009.
Faulkenbury's original work on familiar and lesser-known civil rights activists, on the ground in the North and South before, during, and after the Voting Rights Act of 1965, successfully captures how the civil rights movement evolved from one of demonstrations to one that influenced and registered voters.

Ford, Clementine. Boys Will Be Boys. Oneworld Pubs. ISBN 9781786076632.
Ford follows up her powerful book Fight Like a Girl with a much-needed, unapologetic study of toxic masculinity that relentlessly excavates how complicit we all are in the creation, reinforcement, and perpetuation of a "boys will be boys" mind-set.

Hawes, Jennifer Berry. Grace Will Lead Us Home: The Charleston Church Massacre and the Hard, Inspiring Journey to Forgiveness. Griffin: St. Martin's. ISBN 9781250117762.
On June 17, 2015, the deaths of nine African Americans attending prayer service at the historic Emanuel African Methodist Episcopal Church in Charleston, SC, made national news. Pulitzer Prize–winning journalist Hawes goes beyond the headlines to document the story, along with the 2017 trial in which Dylann Roof received nine consecutive sentences of life without parole.

Headcase: LGBTQ Writers & Artists on Mental Health and Wellness. Oxford Univ. ed. by Stephanie Schroeder & Teresa Theophano. ISBN 9780190846596.
Editors Schroeder and social worker Theophano consider the word headcase to be a reclamation, acknowledging the challenge of being a sexual minority in a heterosexually centric world. The book includes many forms of writing, from academic analysis and letters to personal essays and illustrations.

Hunt, Will. Underground: A Human History of the Worlds Beneath Our Feet. Spiegel & Grau. ISBN 9780812996746.
In an era when many adventurers look to other worlds for discovery, Hunt goes in the opposite direction, burrowing into the shafts and tunnels leading into the earth. The author leads readers into abandoned train tunnels, Parisian sewers, old mines, and Australian ochre shafts.

Jones, Feminista. Reclaiming Our Space: How Black Feminists Are Changing the World from the Tweets to the Streets. Beacon. ISBN 9780807055373.

Copyright of Library Journal is the property of Media Source, Inc. and its content may not be copied or emailed to multiple sites or posted to a listserv without the copyright holder's express written permission. However, users may print, download, or email articles for individual use.